

Memi MOTOSU, Ph.D.

Specially Appointed Associate Professor

E-Mail:

motosu.memi.u8@f.mail.nagoya-u.ac.jp

Work Place:

Graduate School of Environmental Studies

Nagoya University

Address: Furo-cho, Chikusa-ku, Nagoya, JAPAN 464-8601

EDUCATIONAL BACKGROUND

The University of Tokyo, Tokyo Japan

03/2013

Graduate school of Interdisciplinary Information Studies

PhD of Interdisciplinary Information Studies

WORKING EXPERIENCE

Nagoya University of Economics, Inuyama Japan

04/2019-09/2022

Nagoya University, Nagoya Japan

04/2013-03/2019

■ PUBLICATIONS

Book

1. Motosu, M. 2022. "The problems of wind farm location and residents' perceptions." In How can the energy transition work?, edited by Maruyama, Y. and Nishikido, M., 48-63. Tokyo: Shinsensha (in Japanese).
2. Motosu, M. 2016. Social Acceptance of Wind Energy. Kyoto: Nakanishiya (in Japanese).
3. Maruyama, Y., Nishikido, M. and Motosu, M. 2015. Risks of Renewable Energy and Governance. Kyoto: Minerva shobo (in Japanese).

Papers

1. Motosu, M., and Maruyama, Y., 2020, "Social Survey of Attitudes on Wind Turbine Neighbors", Journal of JWEA, 44(4), 39-46.
2. Motosu, M., and Maruyama, Y., 2016, "Local acceptance by people with unvoiced opinions living close to a wind farm: A case study from Japan", Energy Policy, 91, 362-370.

■ SEMINARS AND WORKSHOPS

1. Motosu, M., “Local Acceptance of Wind Energy Projects”, SICE Annual conference, Workshop 2: Control and Optimization for Advanced Wind Energy Systems, 6th September 2022.
2. Motosu, M., “Social acceptance of wind energy projects”, 42th Wind Energy Symposium, 26th November 2020.
3. Motosu, M., “How do women perceive wind projects in Japan?”, 3rd World Community Power Conference “Women in Community Energy”, 19th November 2020.

■ AWARDS

1. Japan Wind Energy Association 2021 Paper Award
2. WWEC 2016 Tokyo Best Presentation Award

■ RESEARCH INTERESTS

Social acceptance, Sustainable development, Marine spatial planning, Environment sociology